

This is unreal. For the FCC to say that they believe the public has no interest in whether or not our source of information is monopolized...well, I don't think they're really listening. Either way, the attack on Iraq turned me away from American media news sources forever.